PORT HURON, Mich., Nov. 2.—A squad of sheriff's deputies and postal inspectors shot it out with two men they trapped in the Smith's Creek postoffice today, killed both of them and blew the one-story frame building full of holes.

An alert village policeman, who sensed a postoffice holdup or burglary last Saturday, made the blow possible.

Mounds From Detroit

Sheriff William Van Antwerp, who led the raiding party, said the men were Detroit hoodlums who had been under surveillance since Saturday.

Identified one as John Novak, alias Shorty Jack, 38. The other man was identified as Edward Scherer, Detroit.

The sheriff with three deputies and two postal inspectors gathered at Smith's Creek, a village near Port Huron, Sunday after Special Deputy Harry Neal, general store proprietor and only law enforcement officer in the village, reported the presence of two suspicious characters loitering at the post office.

They kept constant watch of the post office thereafter from the nearby village hotel and jumped into action early this morning and at the rear of the post office, broke a window and entered.

Ready to Surrender

Sheriff Van Antwerp ordered the men to surrender after his squad had surrounded the small building. There was no response. A tear gas bomb then was hurled inside and the intruders opened fire with pistols, shots which brought a smoking volley from the officers who were equipped with a sub-machine gun, a rifle, shotguns and pistols. About 50 shots were fired, breaking all the windows, shattering porches and fixtures and filling with bullet the two men caught in the withering fire. None of the sheriff's party was injured.

WHEAT IS SLOW,
COPELAND SAYSConfident, However, of Several Weeks of Mild Weather

Lawrence H. Copeland of Millport, government weather observer, in his October weather review predicts farmers will undoubtedly get the three more weeks of good weather to complete outside work.

He finds wheat plants small for this time of the year and needing a better start to stand the rigors of winter. Prospects are good, however. Only a small part of the corn is in the crib at present.

Extreme changes in temperature occurred last month, a period which came to a close with bright blue weather prevailing. The temperature at the close was near normal and the rainfall above normal. There were many frosty nights.

Although Copeland says more rain is needed, the year to date is ahead four inches in rain and three degrees in temperature. The moisture situation in October was termed "fair."

Thirty per cent sunshine was enjoyed. There were 15 melancholy days. The first snow on Oct. 23 and 24 reminded residents of winter weather ahead.

Greenford Driver
Fined at Canfield

A. A. Stewart of near Greenford, arrested by Salem state highway patrolmen on a charge of failing to stop and give information at the scene of an accident, was fined $25 and costs Monday night when he pleaded guilty before Mayor Robert Manchester at Canfield.

Stewart's arrest followed the arrest of Edward Van Valkenberg, 71, of R. D. 2, Salem, Sunday night on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Both arrests were the result of traffic accidents on Routes 62 and 45.

Van Valkenberg was released on $500 bond by Mayor Manchester last night when a hearing was set for Nov. 13.

Use Vote Machines
In Trumbull Today

WARREN, Nov. 2.—For the first time in Ohio's history voting machines were in use in all the major cities of one county in today's election.

Trumbull county will make the test with machines in Warren, Niles and Girard.

The complete vote in the three cities will be known less than an hour after the polls close.

In the county's rural districts and villages the returns will not be complete until at least several hours after the polls close.

Van Valkenberg was released on

$500 bond by Mayor Manchester

last night when a hearing was set for Nov. 13.

NO BLOOD FROM TURNIPS

President Roosevelt, starting a series of conferences on budget balancing, emphasizes again his hope of raising the incomes of that third of the population which he has mentioned so frequently in his speeches as being sub-standard.

The connection of sub-standard living conditions with the subject of budget balancing may seem remote, but it isn't. The government is being forced to face an unpleasant fact about taxation, that it must develop new sources of revenue in order to pay its greatly increased expenses.

The "rich"—meaning the remaining two thirds of the population—cannot be soaked enough to do the job. To be sure, they will be taxed more heavily than they're being taxed now, but that won't be enough either. The government must develop a wider tax base.

It must reach further into the pockets of the lowest third. It must collect from the little man not only indirect taxes, but direct taxes. That's not going to be popular. It's not going to be profitable, either, unless something is put into his pockets first.

Hence, the little man is promised a higher standard of living, to be developed by various and sundry laws. He is expected to be grateful, and maybe he will be—until it dawns on him that something more than altruism is motivating his benefactors.

If, at about the same time it dawns on him that his benefactors' intentions aren't being translated into cash benefits for him and his family, but only into laws that don't help him much, it may occur to him that political hearts have bled for his third of the population ever since he first showed its gratitude by voting for the candidates who promised to help him the most.

I AM THE PEOPLE

Josef Stalin has led an interesting excursion into the woods of the new authoritarian philosophy (Russian style).

Explaining why approximately 1,200 of his countrymen have been shot in the head on his orders, he has said "they did not understand that they must have the great faith of the people."

"Leaders come and go while the people remain," Stalin explained. "It is only the people who are immortal, the rest is transient. Therefore, one must know how to value the trust of the people."

In all probability, the greatest of Russian leaders sincerely believes that he is obliged to translate the "great faith of the people" into sentences of death for lesser leaders when he thinks they have betrayed that faith. Probably, every dictator who orders a "purge" of lesser lights is confident he is acting for the people.

When the people agree that the greatest leader can be trusted to order death in their behalf, that is authoritarianism.

THE LION'S TAIL

The British lion crouches on a little island off the coast of Europe, but he has a very long tail.

It lies in a sweeping curl down through the Mediterranean and Red seas, into the Indian ocean and up through the China sea into the Pacific.

In the goings and comings of mankind it has happened every so often that the tail of the British lion got stepped on, usually by mistake, but sometimes by intention.

When that happened, the lion raised its head and roared. If that didn't bring relief, he lashed his tail and sent the trespassers scurrying. This has worked very well for a great many years.

But today, the tail is being jumped on vigorously in the Mediterranean, which is close to the lion's nerve center, and in the Pacific, which is close to the tuft, but still a sensitive part. And the lion so far has done nothing but growl, which doesn't seem to frighten anyone.

The question is, will the lion roar in the good old-fashioned way one of these days, and if that doesn't do any good, will he lash his tail—and if he does that and no one scurries, what will happen then?

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—Those hiring foreign servants these days should confirm the references with great care. A Park avenue lady recently lost a Japanese servant who had been with her for years. He said he wanted to return to his native land to remain permanently.

A few weeks later another matron phoned her about the flattering references she had given the departing employee, who had just applied to her for a position. The first woman thought it odd, but decided the servant merely wanted to change jobs and was evasive.

Her husband, however, was suspicious. That was not like Oko. So he made an appointment to call on the lady and have the Jap admit him to the house. As he suspected, it was not Oko, but a complete stranger. He called in the police to straighten things out.

It developed the interloper was a professional thief and had bought the references. It was further learned that purchasing references is very common. Some of the foreign-born servants returning home for good make a tidy sum selling high class references to a shady agency.

Incidentally, there is a slump in Jap valets. Many have been called back to fight for their country in China. The Jap valet has long been considered a part of the gay bachelor's personnel and is also a symbol of the nouveaux riches. The first Jap valet in the memory of older New Yorkers was employed by Chauncey Depew in his young and dressy days. George M. Cohan has long had a Chinese valet known to all the theatrical profession as "Mike." It was George Broadhurst, I believe, who had a Filipino valet so excellent in his mimicry of actors that he was offered a booking over a vaudeville circuit.

The highly trained valets, such as those who serve the Vanderbilts, Goulds and Morgans, are as carefully picked as confidential employees in big enterprises or the diplomatic service. They necessarily know all the secrets and must be the sort who can be trusted. The majority are those who have had experience among the nobles of England or the Scandinavian countries. Not only are they linguists, but they must know the fine points of social etiquette. While their job may have a menial sound, they are far from menials. And their life becomes pretty much de luxe. When they travel they go on private yachts, special train coaches and private airplanes. Off duty, they are not found at the movie or at Coney Island, but at the Metropolitan art gallery, the various museums and the opera. Also, they are the most detached of household servants, rarely mingling with the others.

Somerset Maugham travels everywhere with his valet—the only literary figure I know so fortunate. He is such a capable and understanding Jeeves that for years he has selected every article of wearing apparel for his master. Being the same size, he also goes for the fittings of all the clothes. I have been told he is paid $100 a week, plus expenses and is in line for the discarded clothes which, of course, do not have to have the slightest alterations.

They say in Harlem that Bill Robinson has a quarter million saved in annuities against the day when his feather feet are no longer so nimble. The annuities were paid up about a year ago and the dancer is reputed to take only enough of his enormous salary for modest needs and the rest goes to worthy colored charities. He is especially interested in the young boys of his race in his home city, Richmond, Va., and is educating a number of them. Robinson is past 50 and his only extravagances are noisy shirts and ice cream. He admits that there are days when his ice cream consumption is a quart. Robinson's salary has soared to as high as $6,500 a week.

There are few who are not tap dancers at heart. The dignified gentlemen who take private lessons in the art would, I happen to know, surprise most folk. An expert always inspires envy. I have seen Pat Rooney II go through his routine a hundred times and I'd walk blocks any time any day to see him again. Twice in the past ten years I have made arrangements to master the tap, but when I get to the entrance way I somehow get suddenly took with one of my short of breath spells.

Fortunately, almost all of these are friendly germs, harmless in their nature, at least when present in the number I mention. But if the mouth is neglected, it may harbor more than 800 million germs. The vast difference between eight million and 800 million germs may mark the difference between danger and comparative safety. With teeming millions to deal with, the body resistance may be broken and disease may result.

Perhaps you will be astounded to learn that under what we call normal circumstances, even when proper care is taken, there are parked in the mouth from five million to eight million germs! Amazing, isn't it?

Fortunately, almost all of these are friendly germs, harmless in their nature, at least when present in the number I mention. But if the mouth is neglected, it may harbor more than 800 million germs. The vast difference between eight million and 800 million germs may mark the difference between danger and comparative safety. With teeming millions to deal with, the body resistance may be broken and disease may result.

For years the medical and dental professions have waged an unceasing campaign against the evil of neglecting the gums and teeth. Yet, despite this energetic drive, it is estimated that there are actually well over 60 million persons in North America who neglect their teeth. They entirely neglect not only the care of the teeth, which should be their daily duty, but rarely, if ever, visit the dentist except to have extractions.

"THE SILVER ROOD MYSTERY"

by Lewis Allen Browne

CHAPTER XXXIII
I slept rather late and had breakfast alone in the sun room. Sally had come out to sit with me. She had been asleep when I got in, and I was asleep when she got up. I told her in a low voice, about Morin's death?

It seems to me. I will know, to hope, this afternoon. I have to go to New York—have to fly to work again because I overslept and missed the early train."

Then came out with the mail. I carried just left it. There was nothing for me. One of Sally's letters was from a friend in France, a blue postage stamp reminded me of Lardeau.

"Oh, yes, I forgot—they've found Lardeau and he is coming back here," I said.

There was a slight crash. I turned up. Mason had dropped the metal tray on which he had brought out the letters. He seemed to be thoroughly embarrassed. It was the first time I had ever seen a face red.

"Coming back? Have they arrested him?" Sally asked.

"That's the queer part of it." I said that Mason took a napkin in the serving table and was wiping the tray. "Lardeau is coming willingly, the cablegram said.

"Oh, Harley—honestly? How perfectly grand. I'll go at once. Tell me—"

"Not over the wire, Old Girl. See you tomorrow."

I called the little hotel in Hoboken and left word for Phil to come to New York. That was enough. He knew where to find me.

Phil found me in my hotel room at six-thirty.

"Something exciting?" was his greeting.

"Plenty. How's everything?"

"Aside from going out to dinner and coming home pretty well plastered, those two lay mighty low."

"I know they hit it up." I told him of hiding beneath the Pinedale bungalow and hearing them mix drinks.

Briefly I outlined to him what I had discovered.

"So you see, it is mighty important to keep constant tabs on them. Your pride will make you do a good job. More than that, Mrs. Stapleton is quite likely to make you a most generous present."

"I'm on the job, Harley," he assured me.

"Are you sure they haven't spotted you? Don't forget, they're no hicks. They're clever. Fellows is a crook. She's hard-boiled. Be mighty careful. If they suspected that we were wise, or even doubtful, they might get cold feet and disappear."

Phil assured me that he was careful, that he adopted mild disguises as to clothes, hats, glasses, and managed to miss a plane at Cleveland and waited an hour than engage a special one. I made me a couple hours late, but did not reach the office of Schwarz until mid-afternoon.

A young man, evidently an assistant to Mr. Schwarz, was on. He had expected me and had left word that he would be back at four.

"Did you work with him on the job?" I asked.

"No, sir. That is, I helped, but said nothing to me. I would not be at liberty to report, even if I were."

I tried to get interested in some trade and chemical publications. Schwarz was back exactly on time.

"Well, sir, what results?" I asked. "Several. Wait, I will show you."

"The devil couldn't have made me in a couple of words, I assure you."

He took me into a small room and something like a laboratory. "This," he said, holding up the paper, "is no good."

"Forgery?"

The special congressional elections to fill vacancies in the house were being held in New York and one in Virginia. Interest centered on the New York City race by Republican Bruce Barton, advertising executive, against Stanley J. Osserman, Democrat, and George Becker, American labor party.

Virginia's gubernatorial contest aroused little interest even within the state. Observers predicted James H. Price, Democrat, would defeat J. Powell Royall, Republican.

Reduce Phone Rates For Holiday Calls

The Bell system plans to offer reduced rates for long distance telephone service on the coming Thanksgiving Day. It was announced today by C. F. Willman, commercial manager for The Ohio Bell Telephone company.

Reductions will be made effective by applying the night and Sunday rates to long distance messages sent on Thanksgiving Day between points in the United States. In general, this will result in reductions where the regular station-to-station rate is 40 cents or more.

The reduced rates have already been filed by the American Telephone and Telegraph company with the Federal Communications commission and it is expected that the Ohio Bell will file application to put the Thanksgiving Day rates in effect with the Public Utilities commission at Columbus this week.

It was also indicated that similar reduced long distance rates will be effective on next Christmas and New Year's Day.

Supt. Kerr also informed the board that leaks in the ticket booth roofs will be repaired within the next few days.

With the grading of Reilly practice field, bordering the stadium proper, set to start this week, the superintendent proposed that a retaining wall be constructed near the sidewalk to keep the ground from washing down into the street during rains.

Auditorium Schedule

Board members adopted a schedule of rates for use of the High school auditorium by the public. The rates are: $15 for one night where no admission charge is made; $25 for one night for lectures and performances where no rehearsal is required; $35 for one night and one rehearsal, and $50 for an afternoon and night performance the same day.

Upon a motion by E. S. Dawson and Clyde Reich, the board approved the use of the High school auditorium for the annual union Thanksgiving service, Wednesday night, Nov. 24. Rev. S. Talmage Magann, pastor of the First Baptist church, will be the speaker. The program will be sponsored by the Salem Ministerial association.

COLUMBIANA

C. E. Jones, known as an electrical wizard, entertained a large audience Monday evening at the High school auditorium with demonstrations and experiments in the electrical and scientific field. He had a stage full of apparatus and displayed the latest electrical developments as shown at recent World Fair and also told what we may expect to encounter in this field in the next generation.

The "electric eye" is a wonderful invention, which is still only a small part efficient, according to Mr. Jones. He was introduced by Leo Holloway, who also asked the voters present to support the three-mill school levy at today's election. Next Monday evening the third number of the Rotary sponsored entertainment course will be presented by Lon Johnson Company and Caveny. This will be a combination of music and pictorial and sculptural art, presented by a company of three.

At the meeting of the Columbian Rotary club Monday evening Mr. Jones gave a short talk along the line of "What May Happen in the Next 20 Years". Along scientific lines, Mr. Jones says the surface of invention and discovery has only been scratched. Among other things, many articles of food will be produced in laboratories better and more cheaply than they can be grown. Visitors at the meeting were H. A. Tuttle, Youngstown; Jimmy Fitzpatrick; and Rotarians R. S. McCullough and Neil Knowlton, Salem.

Re-create Winter Garden

Re-created also is the famous Winter Garden roof, long since torn down where, in 1906, Harry K. Thaw killed Stanford White. A brief sequence of the picture takes place there.

The Dempsey-Firpo fight in 1923 is still another of the big moments of metropolitan history that comes to life in "Manhattan Melodrama," forming a back-ground for one of the dramatic scenes.

The story itself deals with the careers of two boys, Gable and Powell, reared in the closest friendship and reaching middle life to find themselves on opposite sides of the law, Gable as a big-shot gambler, powerful and dramatic figure of the city's night lift, and Powell as the district attorney forced to prosecute him for murder. Between them, loved by both, is Myrna Loy.

Joan Crawford, Franchot Tone and Robert Young will be seen for the last times tonight in "The Bride Wore Red," featured at the State theater.

New York in the early years of the century when "Diamond Jim" Brady was a familiar figure and Lillian Russell was the toast of the town, lives briefly on the screen in "Manhattan Melodrama," which co-stars Clark Gable, William Powell and Myrna Loy Wednesday and Thursday at the State.

As a sort of prologue to the principal action, which is laid in 1934, the picture re-creates one of the most horrible disasters in the big city's history—the fire and beaching of the excursion steamer General Slocum, a tragedy that cost more than 1,000 lives.

Youth Kidnapped

UHRICHSVILLE, Nov. 2—State highway patrolmen, police and deputy sheriffs continued today a search for 12-year-old John Mack, who was reported kidnapped from in front of his home at 8:30 last night. Neighbors said the boy was placed in a small black coupe.

Government projects accounted for 66 of the new jobs, the remaining 15 being in private enterprises. The office made 85 referrals, 62 of them men and 23 women.

Active files of the service included 1,856 persons registered as seeking employment on Oct. 31. Number of job-seekers dropped 150 from the total a month ago and 300 from the figure for Aug. 31.

October placements brought the 1937 total to 1,214 jobs obtained after referrals by the service. New applications numbered 84 for the month.

BIRD IS FACING LONG JAIL TERM

Convicted Killer and His Wife Bound Over To Federal Jury

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, Nov. 2—Frank Bird, a convicted killer, was under a 45-year federal prison sentence today and his wife, Sylvia, was bound over to the federal grand jury charged with aiding her husband, his brother Charles, and their companion, James Widmer, in escaping from the county jail Sept. 22.

Bird pleaded guilty before Judge Paul Jones in United States district court late yesterday to an indictment charging him with robbing a branch of the Central National bank of $18,836.

Mrs. Bird pleaded guilty to the charge of aiding and abetting the Birds and Widmer in their jail break and not guilty to seven other counts charging her with being accessory after the fact in the bank robberies committed by the trio.

Shortly after the girl's arraignment, the Birds were taken to county jail, where they became fellow prisoners of Widmer and another Bird brother, George, who likewise is charged with aiding in the jail break and being an accessory after the fact in the Bird-Widmer crimes.

The funeral service will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the Stark Memorial in charge of Rev. Alvin Evers of Canton. Burial will be in Woodsdale cemetery near Winona.

Friends may call at the Stark Memorial from 7 until 9 p. m. Wednesday.

QUAKERS DUE TO FACE RAZZLE-DAZZLE ATTACK

DOVER ELEVEN BOASTS FANCY BALL-HANDLING

Razzle - Dazzle Offense Is Used By Quakers' Next Opponent

Coach Carl Schroeder's Salem High school Quakers have heard about it. They've read about it. And they've undoubtedly seen it work.

But so far this season, they haven't come face to face with any of it.

Yes, we mean razzle-dazzle, that scintillating kind of football from which all kinds of trick laterals, shovel passes and everything else sensational originates.

Opponents featuring the razzle-dazzle, type of play have been missing from the Quakers' schedule to date, but there's a change coming this Saturday afternoon when Dover High school's Crimson warriors invade Reilly stadium.

Unless Coach Bup Rearick, who is better known for his crack Dover basketball teams, makes a decided change in his offensive system, the Quakers are in for a full afternoon of laterals, shovel passes and so-on this Saturday.

Dover stresses clever ball-handling in its offense, using trick and deceptive plays for most of its attack. Much of the Crimson's success this season is due to the fact that Rearick has emphasized ball-handling and his players have taken to tossing the pigskin around in a manner reminiscent of an expert basketball aggregation.

Supported by a strong forward wall which gives backs plenty of time to execute trick plays, Dover has done right well with its razzle-dazzle so far this season.

The Crimson has won five and lost two in its seven games to date. The victories were over Akron Kenmore, 19-7; Wooster, 12-6; Zanesville, 13-7; Orville, 43-0, and Urichsville, 53-6.

Rearick's charges were handed set-backs by a tough Toronto eleven, 9-0, and a still tougher Canton McKinley crew, 12-0.

The Crimson reached its height against Canton McKinley, although losing to the strong Stark County eleven which is today one of the few remaining undefeated, untied and unscorched on teams in the state.

Using a wide-open style of play, Dover penetrated further into Canton territory than any other team the Bulldogs have met this season, tossed 29 forward passes and kept the Pups continually puzzled with fancy laterals.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

By EDDIE BRIETZ.
NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Baltimore one of the best sports towns in this country, has been without a fight club since Carlin's park burned down some time ago. Chief Little Wolf, the W. K. Burper, is traveling 10,766 miles—all the way from New Zealand—to fill a wrestling date with Bronko Nagurski at the Hippodrome tomorrow night.

After a game played in the mud, Ray Larson, university of Detroit end, weighed his equipment.

The scales showed 29 pounds.

The same equipment dry would weigh less than 11 pounds.

There is a town named Ball Ground in Georgia. . . . Michigan has a Base Line, Arkansas an Umpire and Minnesota a Ball Club. . . . Max Schmeding has just bought himself another 1,660 acre country estate.

Judge, former Washington baseball idol, is cleaning up in the restaurant business there and looks like a fixture as baseball coach at Georgetown university.

Matty Matthews, coach of the University of Portland Pilots, does not permit football huddles. Says he asked 100 coaches to give a good reason for using the huddle and nary a coach came up with an answer. . . . Back from a successful tour of the British Isles, Walter Hagen and Joe Kirkwood next plan to invade South Africa.

George Sheppard, Brooklyn fight manager, claims he is the youngest veteran in the racket.

Although only 31, George has been in boxing 14 years and has handled more than 200 pugs. . . . This week's all-American nomination: Red Tipton, Duke back, . . . Capt. W. H. Peoples, matchmaker for the Miami American Legion, is in town trying to line up a Lou Ambers-Pete Sarron lightweight duel for February. . . . Asked what Knute Rockne would have done about present day gridiron developments such as razzle-dazzle laterals, five and six men lines, etc., Elmer Layden, Notre Dame coach and one of Rock's prize pupils, answered: "He would have kept up with 'em."

His legion of friends are going to a big party in Washington November 6, when Walter Johnson, the old "Big Train" observes his 50th anniversary. . . . Henry Armstrong is going to challenge Lou Ambers to a lightweight title match.

Everyone concerned is as silent as can be on reports that Joe Medwick is tagged for the Giants. . . . Max Fiske, the big he-man half-back of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was on the waltzing and debating teams at DePaul university.

DAYTON—Red Burman, 187, New York, knocked out Joe Sekyra, 174, Dayton (2).

Goodman Tackles Tough Opposition

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 2.—Omaha's Johnny Goodman, who hardly had a good afternoon's practice when he won the Mexican national amateur golf championship from Percy M. Clifford last year, tackles tougher opposition today when he defends the title against the "Flying Dutchman" from Dallas, young Don Schumacher.

After breezing through all opposition on the way to today's 36-hole final, these two appear all set for a real match.

Goodman disposed of Ed Appold of Mexico City, 9 and 8, in the semi-final yesterday.

Schumacher played even more brilliantly to gain a 10 and 9 victory over Blain McNutt of El Paso, Texas.

NAME GEHRINGER MOST VALUABLE PLAYER OF 1937

Joe Di Maggio Selected Second In Poll of Sport Writers

By SID FEDER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Charlie Gehringer was named by the Baseball Writers' association today as the American league's "most valuable player" for 1937, thereby climaxing the biggest season of his 14-year career with the game's most distinguished award.

At an age when many players are on the way down—and out, the Detroit Tigers' "strong silent man" thus found his 34th year, already marked by the league batting championship, topped off by two much sought-after goals.

Although his margin of victory in the writers' poll was only four points over Joe Di Maggio, deadpan dynamiter of the World Champion New York Yankees, Gehringer nevertheless came within two points of a "perfect" score in the balloting.

Eight members of the association voted on the award, each casting one vote each for his first 10 nominations for the honor. Gehringer drew six first-place and two second-place nominations. This total, figured on basis of 10 points for first, nine for second, eight for third and so on, gave him an aggregate of 78 points out of a possible 80.

DiMaggio, with two nominations for first and six for second, compiled a total of 74. The balloting was strictly a two-player affair.

Third member of the Detroit clan to win the award since the baseball writers first presented it in 1931, Gehringer was selected for the brilliant all-round play that has made him today the standout second baseman in the American league, if not in the game.

Only twice has he fallen below the .300 batting mark since becoming a regular in 1926. He hit for .356 in 1934, .354 in 1936, and last season clouted at a merry .369 pace, best in both major leagues. His lifetime average is .329 over his 14 seasons.

Gehringer is the third member of the Tiger clan to win the honor. Before Greenberg drew it in 1935, Cochrane received the award in 1934 for his great leadership. Gehringer was last year's winner.

The committee balloting on the award was composed of Hy Hurwitz of the Boston Globe, John Carmichael, Chicago Daily News; Gordon Cobblewick, Cleveland Plain Dealer; H. G. Salsinger, Detroit News; Max Kase, New York Journal-American; James Isaminger, Philadelphia Inquirer; Glen Waller, St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and Francis E. Stan, Washington Star.

Farm Tenant Loans Will Be Available To County Tenants

Ohio will receive $224,327.00 during the current year to loan to tenants for the purchase of family-size farms.

This amount is Ohio's share of the $9,500,000.00 provided under the terms of the Bankhead-Jones farm tenant act.

Notice of the distribution was received today by A. L. Sorenson, state director of rural rehabilitation for the Farm Security administration, from regional headquarters in Indianapolis.

Portioning out of the funds between the various states and territories was based on farm population and prevalence of farm tenancy. It is expected that the program will be placed in effect in about 300 counties of the country this year.

Sorenson said that Ohio Counties to be included in this list would be chosen later on a basis similar to that used for portioning funds among the various states.

Plans now are to make at least five and not more than ten tenant loans in each of the counties designated.

Any farm tenant, farm laborer, share-cropper, or other person who obtains a major share of his income from farming operations is eligible to apply for a loan after the program is placed in operation in his county.

Applications will be received by the county rural rehabilitation supervisors.

Farmer-committeemen in each of the designed counties will assist in examining applicants and investigating farms which these applicants wish to purchase.

All applicants will be examined as to their past reputation or paying debts, stability of residence, ability and experience in farming, health and general character.

Sorenson said.

He added that those who could finance purchase of land through other government or recognized credit agencies would not be eligible for tenant loans.

New Health Nurse

ALLIANCE, Nov. 2.—Miss Thelma Ball of Louisville yesterday became tuberculosis nurse here as a new program of nursing service went into effect, through co-operation of the Alliance Tuberculosis League and Red Cross.

Auto Sales Are Up

LISBON, Nov. 2.—Auto and truck sales in Columbiana county during October were slightly better than during the preceding month, a report compiled by Clerk of Courts Carl Stacey's office indicates.

In October, 197 pleasure cars, one bus, two motorcycles and 24 trucks were sold. In September 183 pleasure cars, 35 trucks, two buses and one motorcycle were purchased.

Miner Is Killed

EAST LIVERPOOL, Nov. 2.—Paul Kozak, 50-year-old miner, was fatally hurt when crushed under a fall of slate in the Talbot coal mine in nearby Chester, W. Va.

Kozak died Monday night in City hospital here, two hours after the accident. It was his first day's employment in the pit.

to amateur operators—Class A, the highest, which Matthews holds; Class B and Class C. Classes B and C are the most restricted.

Although numerous detailed and fixed regulations govern amateur radio operators, a general classification of the types of licenses may be:

Class C (lowest), certificates granted to those applicants not able to reach the point where examinations are given at stated times. Government examiners hold tests at intervals in certain cities throughout the country where amateurs seeking operator's licenses may apply. Persons 500 or more miles distant from the examination point may take their tests by mail and if gradings show their competency are granted Class C licenses.

Class B applicants, in addition to fulfilling all other requirements, must be present when examinations are given.

Both the above named licenses provide for radio operation by code only. Class A licenses, which demand greater and more detailed knowledge of the field, permit transmission of messages by phone or code.

Uses Phone Transmission

Matthews' is the only station in Salem or vicinity using phone for transmission. His station was off the air for some time recently while a new 30-foot tower to permit greater reception and transmission was being constructed in the rear of his home.

Mrs. Matthews, a charming woman almost as learned in amateur radio work as her husband, confessed to the interviewer, "I was glad when that tower was finished, so my husband could get back to his radio. He is lost without it."

Mrs. Matthews has become so thoroughly versed in the operation and workings of her husband's station that, with a little study, she could apply for an operator's license. Asked why she didn't smile, she replied, "I never seem to get around to it."

Matthews became interested in radio about 1916, but his early activities were called to a halt by the United States' entrance into the World war. All amateur and official stations were completely closed by the government.

Belongs to Naval Reserve

Matthews is a member of the U. S. Naval Reserve and in the event of U. S. participation in another conflict, he would be called to enter the radio branch of the service. The government requires that all amateurs keep a record or log of all time spent receiving or transmitting.

Inspectors are sent at intervals to examine the logs. In that way the government is provided with a means of checking, in case of any trouble, any radio station which might be involved in the disturbance.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthews told the reporter that many of their best friends are ones they became acquainted with through radio contacts.

An ideal of amateur radio and its devotees is that of extending help and assistance at all times to those in distress. And to perform every service cheerfully without thought of reward. The acceptance of reward for a service or the transmission of a commercial message will cost an amateur operator his license.

The humane services which have been rendered by Matthews are illustrated by an incident which happened a little more than a year ago. Matthews chanced to contact a young man in a Pennsylvania town who asked him to get in touch, if possible, with a girl whose last known whereabouts was in this section of the country. Relatives were anxious to locate her because there had been a death in the family.

Found in E. Liverpool

Mr. and Mrs. Matthews, after considerable trouble and expense, located a girl by that name in East Liverpool and she was able to return home in time for her father's funeral.

The great service given by amateur radio operators in recent floods and catastrophes is general knowledge.

Although there are several amateurs operating by code in Salem, among them, George Murphy and Frank Stone, Matthews' Station W8CJG is best known to distant amateurs.

5-Mill Levy

Largest of the tax levy proposals were those for five mills each Akron and Barberton for current operations. Many of the bond issues, the total of which is about $2,000,000, were for construction of schools and flood protection.

Little violence marred the elections. Robert Jackson of Wapakoneta reported at Lima that an unknown assailant fired two shots into the sound truck he was driving, shattering the windshield and narrowly missing him. The truck advertised the candidacy of W. F. Murphy, Democrat, who waged a heated campaign for mayoralty against A. L. Meatheny, Repub-ican incumbent.
